STATE COLLEGE OF KENTUCKY,

Lexington, - - Kentucky.

The Agricultural and Mechanical (State College) of Kentucky offers the following courses of study, viz: Agricultural, horticultural, chemical, biological mathematical, physical, normal school, classical, mechanical engineering, electrical engineering, civil engineering, mining engineering, each of which extends over four years and leads to a degree. Post graduate studies are also provided, leading to a master's degree. Each course of study is organized under a separate faculty. The general faculty number nearly fifty professors and instructors.

County appointees receive tuition, room rent in dormitories, fuel and light, and if they remain ten months, traveling expenses.

The laboratories and museums are large, well equipped, comprehensive and modern.

The Legislature appropriated $60,000 for a college home for young women, and $30,000 for drill hall and gymnasium for men. Both buildings are completed and in use. Military tactics and science are fully provided for as required by Congress.

Graduates from the several courses of study readily find excellent positions and liberal remuneration. The demand is largely in excess of the ability of the college to supply. Last year the matriculation was 750.

Specialists with the necessary number of assistants have charge of each department of natural science. Summer schools are provided for pedagogy, engineering and instruction in science.

The State College of Kentucky, though bearing hitherto the title of "college," is the only institution in the Commonwealth doing in any proper sense university work.

The completion of the college home for young women provides facilities for good board and lodging. It is equipped with all modern conveniences, including bath rooms and room for physical culture. It is heated by steam and lighted by electricity.

An opportunity is thus afforded to them of a thorough education in classics, modern languages, literature, science, mathematics, logic, metaphysics, history and political economy. No other institution in the State offers advantages for education of women at all comparable to those offered by the State College of Kentucky.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

WASHINGTON, August 22.

Pursuing President Roosevelt's record as an issue in this campaign from my letter of last week, let us look at a few things that he must answer, albeit he is now trying to repress himself and play the dignified and conservative candidate as against the strenuous and militant President.

Let us see:

Far worse than this political partnership with trusts under the tariff is the blow which he dealt to public confidence in the sincerity of his opposition to monopoly by the changes in his Cabinet on the eve of his personal campaign for election to the Presidency.

The politic removal of Attorney-General Knox just as he had demonstrated in one notable instance his ability to enforce the law against combining corporations, after all previous Attorneys-General of both parties had failed, was a shocking submission to the plutocratic power which with admirable courage he successfully challenged in the Northern Securities case. But the transfer of Secretary Cortelyou from the head of the Department of Commerce, created, as the law declares, to make "diligent investigation" of the affairs of corporations, and, as his platform says, to secure "reasonable publicity to their operations"—to the Chairmanship of his Campaign Committee, has all the appearance of deliberate preparation for partisan blackmail of the very corporations that were to be investigated.

Mr. Cortelyou, formerly his private secretary, was at the head of the Department of Commerce just long enough to acquire by "diligent investigation" such information as would be useful to the filler of his campaign chest. The public does not share this information. There is no evidence that the law officers of the Government are making use of it to suppress and punish such odious and oppressive monopolies as the Beef Trust—which controls the greater portion of the meat supply of 80,000,000 people. But ex-private and ex-public Secretary Cortelyou—Chairman Cortelyou of his Campaign Committee, knows all that the law enabled him to learn of the inner workings of the potential campaign contributors!

What saves consuming ambition to be elected President in his own right could have led him to shift his successful trust prosecutor to Quay's place as a trust agent in the Senate, and to convert his confidential private secretary and trust investigator into a campaign trust fatfryer, in place of Mark Hanna, deceased?

He boasts that "never has the administration of the Government been on a cleaner and higher level." We appeal to all honest men whether in the annals of our Government there was ever a greater abuse of power, a greater public scandal, or a more unprincipled defiance of decent public opinion than is this transfer of an official investigator and curber of great corporations to be a collector of campaign funds from them!

He says he "earnestly desires friendship with all the nations of the New and Old Worlds," and that he thinks "peace is right as well as advantageous." Can he wonder that the people find it hard to recognize in these pacific utterances the Roosevelt they have known hitherto? A short time ago, in urging the creation of an even larger navy, the advice he gave for the navy was: "Speak softly, but carry a big stick." Is the man who habitually does this generally "seeking peace?" Does he think that the other nations of the New World thought that he, as President of this Republic, really "desired peace and friendship" with them when he wrote in his letter to the Cuban dinner?—

"Any country whose people conduct themselves well can count upon our hearty friendliness. If a nation shows that it knows how to act with decency in industrial and political matters, if it keeps order and PAYS ITS OBLIGATIONS, then it need fear no interference from the United States. Brutal wrong-doing or an impotence which results in the general loosening of the ties of civilized society may finally require intervention by some civilized nation, and in the Western Hemisphere the United States can not ignore ITS DUTY."

Is not this unmistakably a threat that if any of the republics of Central or South America fails to "act with decency"—he being the judge—or if it fails to "keep order and pay its obligations" (as some of the States of our Union have failed to pay), it "need fear no interference from the United States;" but that if any or all of these States fail to live up to his standard of order and morality, "civilized society may finally require intervention," and that then "the United States cannot ignore its duty?"

In other words, he proposes that he, as President of the United States, shall constitute himself the Supervisor and Sponser of all the turbulent, chronically revolutionary, bankrupt sham republics of the Western Hemisphere, and will undertake to make them "act with decency" and pay their debts to the bondholders, speculators and usurers of Europe!

Can even the wildest imagination conceive a more grotesque, preposterous and dangerous perversion of the Monroe Doctrine than is contained in this extraordinary proposition? It combines the humbug of Barnum with the hypocrisy of Uriah Heep—and all to prove, as he says in his speech, that the non-interference doctrine of James Monroe is "a living reality!"

If there could be devised a more effective perpetual invitation to war and trouble than this policy holds out, the imagination of diplomatists and the combatitive instinct of soldiers looking for a fight have not yet conceived it.

Can he wonder that the conservative business men of the country, who above all need stability and security of their affairs, want a President in the White House whose temperament, training and character will enable them to go to sleep at night without fear of waking any morning and learning from startling headlines in the newspapers that the President has dispatched warships to Turkey, Morocco, Venezuela, China or where not, on insufficient information or with impossible demands—or has been cabling buncombe messages that he wants "Perdicaris alive or Raisuli dead," or ordering some of our neighbors to "act decently" and 'pay their debts?"

My faith in the intelligence, the common sense, and the conscience of the American people is too great to believe that they will give a commission for four years in his own name to the chance pilot who is now heading the ship of state toward the rocks upon which other republics have been wrecked—tolerated usurpations by the Executive; warlike adventures for gain and glory; contempt for law; privileged classes sustained by election bribes; corruption in high places and extravagant expenditures from unjust taxes. Honor and prudence alike require a change of pilots and a return to the chart of the Constitution, to the rule of law and the flag of a peace-loving republic.

THE primary election for Circuit Judge in the new judicial district composed of Magoffin, Floyd and Knott, held on Saturday last, resulted in the nomination of Judge Gardner, the present incumbent by appointment from the Governor. From information we had just prior to the primary it looked very much as if Hon. David Sublett would win the prize, but but the withdrawal of Floyd county's candidate in favor of Gardner, changed the aspect of affairs and the result as above noted. It is none of our put, but from the time the district was made, according to the information we have, it looks very much as if Mr. Sublett has been traitorously treated. That there was an agreement when the district was first created that Hon. David Sublett should receive the appointment, is said to be an undisputed fact. Mr. Gardner, however, got the appointment, and that it helped him to secure the nomination is plain to be seen. But, as the lamented Jewell was wont to say, "Politics is hell."

CASTORIA.

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

THE announcement of G. T. Center, of Stillwater, appears in our issue today. He is an aspirant for the office of County Judge, an office which he filled to the satisfaction of the people generally from January, 1898, to the first Monday in January, 1902. During his incumbancy he made many improvements in the county, notable among which were three bridges across Red River—one at Lee City, one at Cox's Mill, and one at Spradling. He made so many and such great improvements in the county roads that space forbids the mention of them in detail, nor is it necessary, for the people know and appreciate them. But with all the improvements he kept taxes at a lower rate than any Judge who preceded or succeeded him, as far as the records show. And upon this record he is now again asking for the office, believing that in a second term he can do as well, or better, than he did before. To prove his record he requests that all the taxpayers refer to their tax receipts, and all signed by A. T. Combs, Sheriff, will verify the statements he has here made. He believes that the proper way to care for the indigent poor is to place them in the hands of their friends and abolish the poor house. This insures their comfort, and is the Christian spirit in which to deal with them. This was the policy he pursued before, and he thinks it the better way. He, of course, submits his claims to the Democratic primary on November 12, and will abide its decision.

Tired Mothers.

It's hard work to take care of children and to cook, sweep, wash, sew and mend besides. Tired mothers should take Hood's Sarsaparilla—it refreshes the blood, improves the appetite, assures restful sleep.

UNDER the heading of announcements will be found the name of W. B. Duff, of Campton, who is a candidate for the office of County Attorney of Wolfe county. The office is one that should be filled by a man thoroughly conversant with the laws of the county and commonwealth, and we doubt if any man has ever offered for the position in this county who is more experienced than "Bud" Duff, as he is known by his friends. He has been a magistrate for 12 years; was a member of the Wolfe Fiscal Court during the term of 1896, 1897 and 1898, when the expense of the county was only 50 cents poll tax and 25 cents on the $100. In fact, he might appropriately be called "the watch dog of the Wolfe county treasury," as he is always in the fight for the economical expenditure of the people's money, and beside all this he is a sober man. For over five years past he has never touched a drop of liquor. Naturally the people like a man who looks to their interests, and he being that kind of a man he will be a hard one to defeat for the nomination, if, indeed, such a thing can be, and once nominated he could not be defeated for the office. With these preliminary remarks we leave him in the hands of the Democratic party, fully convinced that the voters will give his claims due consideration.

Sylvester Adams, who killed his brother, John Adams, on Stillwater, an account of which appeared in THE HERALD at the time, was captured on Monday night last two miles north of Ezel by a man named Fitzpatrick. The Governor had offered $150 reward.

The primary election held in Menefee last Saturday to nominate Democratic candidates for the various county offices resulted as follows: W. H. Craig, County Judge; Thomas L. Caudell, County Attorney; John A. Cope, Sheriff; B. F. Peck, Superintendent Schools; J. H. Hilton, County Clerk; Billy Hughes, Assessor. The ballots were burned in the Slate precinct, and if the precinct is thrown out it will materially affect several of the nominees, and especially the clerk, who is only six votes to the good. Peck, for Superintendent, was only nominated by a majority of two votes. Great excitement prevailed during the day, but no serious trouble resulted.

Desperate Fight With Moonshiners.

In a desperate fight between moonshiners and revenue men near the line between Breathitt and Magoffin, at the head of Licking river, Col. J. L. McCoy, deputy collector, was shot twice, one ball taking effect in the head and the other in the back just below the shoulder blade, though neither wound is serious. A moonshine still containing a thousand gallons of beer, with all the fixtures, was destroyed.

Col. McCoy left Jackson on the morning of August 16th in company with Sherman Cope and Henry Freeman, of Jackson, as possemen. They had information that a moonshine distillery was being operated near the Breathitt and Magoffin line, on the head of the Middle Fark of Licking river, and they proceeded directly to that point. Reaching the foot of the hill on this side they dismounted, and, leaving their horses there, proceeded by foot to the point where the distillery was being operated.

The way was very rough and it was with difficulty that they found the proper location. They reached the drain below the still and coming up they found it surrounded on three sides by steep mountains, but there was no one there, the moonshiners evidently having heard their approach had secreted themselves on the sides of the mountain, armed and ready for a fight.

Col. McCoy is a fearless officer, and the men who accompanied him were of like material. The surroundings showed fresh signs of life, and it was evident that the 'shiners were close by, but they proceeded to destroy the still and to pour the many barrels of beer out on the ground. They had scarcely begun their work when a shot rang out, coming from the hill about one hundred yards distant. At this juncture McCoy stepped across a branch where he had left his coat, and just as he stooped to pick it up the second shot was fired, striking him as above stated, the charge coming from a shotgun.

Posseman Freeman, with a good Colts 45, rushed up the hill from whence the shots came, which was almost precipitous, got close to the place of ambush and saw four men, one of them with a gun, covering the distillery, where Cope was destroying the fermenters with an ax. Freeman opened fire on them, one dropped his gun, which was picked up by another, and they all rushed back into the trees.

Col. McCoy and his men showed great bravery and judgment in the fight, and it was lucky that they escaped without the loss of life; and while they did not succeed in capturing the moonshiners, they completely demolished their distillery, after which they reached their horses and returned to Jackson.
